Hats off to the fans

Natty and Don travelled to the amazing Etihad Stadium, home of the Melbourne Renegades, for their Big Bash cricket game.

Prissy princesses

Who do the two young "ladies" Eugenie and Beatrice think they are? Just because they're born into the royal family doesn't give them the right to behave badly. The rest of the family are going to turn their backs on them.

Beautiful Bonells

I've always loved reading about the wonderful Bonell family (WD July 16) and seeing how their happy brood is growing up, so I was saddened to hear of Jeni's shock cancer diagnosis last year. While surgery and wonderful medical care has given Jeni back her health, I'm sure that the love of her 16 beautiful children and devoted husband Ray was the most powerful medicine of all. It's wonderful to see Jeni looking so well again.

Xavier's legacy & love

For 10 years I worked with children and families as a social worker. I learned a lot about grief but I didn't realise its total devastation until January 30, 2015, when my husband and I heard the words every parent dreads. "I'm sorry. There's no heartbeat."

Our beautiful boy Xavier was stillborn the next day. Some time later, my husband and I made the decision to try for another baby, and on March 14, 2017, we were lucky enough to welcome Xavier's baby brother into the world. His name is Kai and in a very special coincidence he was born at 2.18pm – the exact same time as Xavier. I've found great comfort in reading other parents' stories of loss and their process of healing, so I decided to write my own. You Could Have Been... is a picture book for bereaved parents. You can buy it from anniemauthor.com and a portion of each sale goes to stillbirthfoundation.org.au
